

Amanda Baker

Vice President

Relationship Builder. Patient Advocate. Travel Enthusiast.

Amanda Baker is an experienced business builder providing counsel to health system executives, boards and physicians across the country on strategy, performance, and leadership, with particular expertise in patient engagement and brand equity.

Prior to joining Corrigan Consulting, Amanda was a Vice President with BVK and Navvis Healthways, specializing in competitive strategy in the health industry. She helped health systems focus and accelerate business model redesign to deliver the triple aim of improved outcomes, cost and experience for patients, and defining, measuring and achieving success in population health management. She worked on the development, implementation and management of growth and diversification initiatives to support value-based payment transformation, including Government Care Innovation Programs such as ACOs, bundled payments, care transitions, and high-performing post-acute networks.

Amanda has over ten years of experience in the management and operation of physician group practices. She has extensive experience in the financial operations, human resources, information technology management, managed care, operations, governance, strategic planning and marketing of surgical, behavioral healthcare and academic medical practices.

When not on the road, Amanda is out exploring the world with her camera and four rescue dogs.
